

Community Profile

Introduction

Oxford Architects has an established and distinguished record of producing high quality Community buildings. Working nationally, we are a successful Architectural Practice who understands the challenges and opportunities presented when designing and constructing buildings in the Community Sector.

We have the ability to provide the complete range of architectural services undertaking projects from brief formulation and the earliest stages of masterplanning through to design development, visualisation and production information to enable the competitive procurement of buildings and infrastructure.

The diverse nature of commissions we undertake includes projects for the Education, Research, Healthcare, Transport, Commercial, Community, Industrial and Residential sectors which enables us to transfer skills and knowledge from one sector to another.

Methodology

Our success is based on building good client relationships through meeting, listening and understanding their requirements and needs. Added value comes from bringing knowledge and experience from other sectors to provide solutions that may not have been otherwise considered.

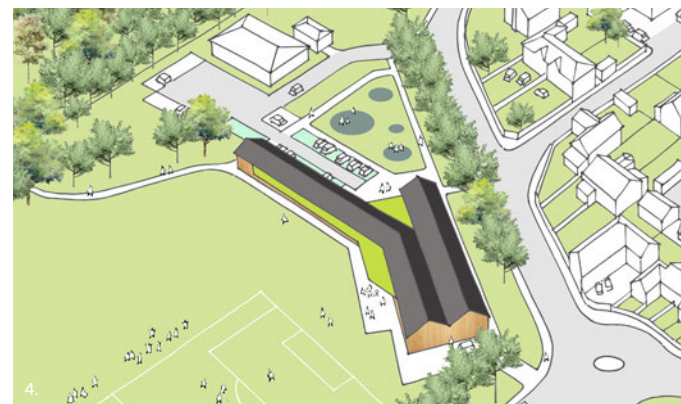

The needs of the Community vary from project to project. We approach all projects as a collaboration with our clients. Through discussion and dialogue with all parties, we develop a series of responses that fulfil their requirements in a flexible and creative way.

Design Approach

Community buildings need to be flexible and take their design cues from the people who will use the spaces. They need to accommodate varying uses, at varying times, for a varying number of people. It is therefore incumbent on us as Architects to use our experience and creative design skills to develop a series of flexible and inclusive design solutions, which not only meet the brief but exceed our client's aspirations.

Wider community engagement provides the forum for comments and feedback which is a vital process to ensure successful project delivery. We have extensive experience in facilitating, organising and leading these workshops.
